MEET
CAMERON

BY PETE DONOVAN

He has the looks. He also has the larger than life personality, complete with a dazzling smile. He even has the name. But Cameron Maybin is not in a starring role in Hollywood at the moment. He's cast in a no-less important supporting role in Anaheim.

And make no mistake about it, Maybin's role on the 2017 Angels is red-letter important. He is the new left fielder, filling a position that has been very unproductive for the team for the past two seasons, the position always ranking near the bottom in offensive productions in the American League. Angel left fielders have hit a combined .214 the last two years with a poor on-base percentage of .277.

The graceful Maybin will be paired in the outfield with the reigning Most Valuable Player in the league and consensus best player on the planet, Mike Trout, who once again patrols center field next to the underrated Kole Calhoun in right field. It may well be the Angels' best outfield in more than a decade.

Maybin is a natural center fielder, a big man (6-4, 215) who covers large patches of any outfield with gazelle-like strides. Once projected to be a power hitter, he has altered his approach to hitting (he credits former hitting coach Kevin Seitzer) and is now a consistent line-drive, up-the-middle hitter.

Acquired in December from Detroit (for pitcher Victor Alcantara), Maybin brings both consistency and personality to the Angels. He's a 10-year veteran who has stolen as many as 40 bases in one season. He is coming off a 2016 campaign where he hit a career high .315 (and a lofty .380 with runners in scoring position).

MEET CAMERON MAYBIN

Now 30, Maybin has played in Detroit, Miami, San Diego and Atlanta before landing with the Angels this year.

“They’ve seen something in me,” Maybin said, “to give me a shot. I embrace all the opportunities that come my way.

“I will bring energy and passion to this team,” he added. “I play every game as if it is my last game. I have a great love for the game and a will to win.”

A first round pick (10th overall) by the Tigers in 2005, Maybin will be a free agent after the season but for now he is excited to be in a lineup that features the aforementioned Trout and three-time MVP Albert Pujols.

“They’ve done so much in the game, it’s amazing how humble they are — humility over pride is impressive.

“This is the best game in the world for building character,” continued Maybin. “It’s about learning to take the bad with the good. You grow a lot more humble if you learn how to do that.”

Growing up in Asheville, North Carolina, his rooting interests were more in college basketball than in big-time baseball. Prior to North Carolina winning the NCAA championship in men's basketball over Gonzaga, he predicted the Heels would win the final game by five points.

They won by six.

Meanwhile his cousin Rashad McCants won an NCAA basketball title at North Carolina, "Yep, I definitely bleed Carolina Blue," he said. "That's a challenge because I live in a house-divided. My wife is a Duke fan.

"I didn't have a favorite baseball team, but we got a lot of Braves games and Cubs games on TV. I always liked Ken Griffey, Jr. (Maybin has been a centerfielder most of his career). And other outfielders like Andruw Jones, Eric Davis, (former Angel standout) Devon White and Mike Cameron." He also is confident on the whole.

"I've done this for a long time," he told Jeff Fletcher of the Orange County Register in March. "I don't worry too much. I'm a ballplayer. I'm a pretty good baseball player. It's just about making adjustments and not getting too up or down about anything. There are going to be some high moments too, but just stay humble. I'm big on humility." He's also big on giving back to the community.

MEET CAMERON MAYBIN

“I want to energize the young people, show them the value of education and introduce them to the great game of baseball.”

In his hometown back in North Carolina, he runs a Maybin Mission baseball camp and has founded holiday programs for kids at the Salvation Army.

“We have to be advocates for the game in the African-American community,” Maybin said. “Half the kids in my camp were African-American. Yet as they grow up they seem to think basketball and other sports are easier. We have to let them know what you can learn in baseball, and that it can give you a longer career.”

Cameron Maybin may not be in a starring role on the field right now, but he certainly is off the field.

And it is a good look for a newcomer with a larger than life personality, complete with a dazzling smile.

Angel Magazine writer Pete Donovan first covered the Angels in 1970 and once pitched batting practice to Willie Mays Aikens.

ELEVATION: COUNTDOWN TO 600 HOME RUNS

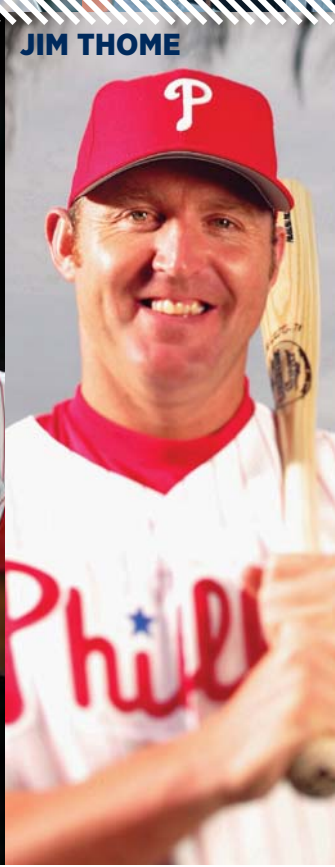

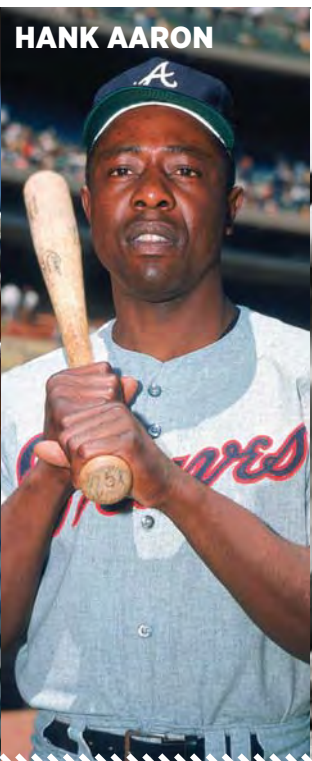

Albert Pujols began the 2017 season with 591 career home runs, which is ninth all-time. The mark is also, of course, just nine homers shy of the magical 600 home run plateau.

CHASING 3,000

ALBERT PUJOLS CONTINUES TO MAKE HISTORY IN A VARIETY OF OFFENSIVE CATEGORIES, INCLUDING HITS

Thirty men have reached the magical 3000 career hit mark in their careers. Albert Pujols began this season ranked 50th on baseball's all-time hit list with 2825. That ranks third among all active hitters behind Ichiro Suzuki (who enjoyed No. 3000 last year) and Adrian Beltre (he started this year at 2942). Last year Pujols had 159 hits with the Angels. He has averaged 159 hits over his last three seasons.

THE COLLEGE YEARS

DANNY ESPINOSA

LONG BEACH STATE UNIVERSITY

Before embarking on a pro baseball career — which, to date, has included eight seasons in the big leagues — Danny Espinosa applied his craft at the college level at nearby Long Beach State University.

Born in Santa Ana, Espinosa chose to stay close to home after graduating from Mater Dei High School. In all, he played three seasons for the Dirtbags.

“I enjoyed Long Beach a lot. It was a good school and the baseball program was unbelievable,” he said. “As a person I feel the experience really helped me grow and become independent. For life skills the whole experience helped me grow as a person.”

The switch-hitting infielder compiled a .303 career batting average at Long Beach. He also did not produce the power then that he does now — he hit 11 total home runs in 650 career at-bats compared to the two 20-plus home run campaigns he has on his resume while with the Washington Nationals.

With the glove his fielding percentage improved each season. In 2008, Washington selected Espinosa in the third round (87th overall), and the program helped him get to where he is today (this is his first season with the Angels following an offseason trade back to Southern California).

A career in baseball was something on Espinosa’s mind back then as well.

“I did think back then a pro baseball career could be in my future. That was one of my goals,” Espinosa said. “I strived for that. I did not go there thinking I was going to go to the school for four years. My initial mindset was on three years — get as much schooling in as I could — and then I would be draft-eligible.

“From there it has been about playing ball.”

HEANEY'S HEADLINES

Throughout the season special moments and his life and career in

Andrew Heaney shares unique insight into Angel Magazine

BY ANDREW HEANEY

The first time I remember playing baseball was when I was around five years old. That was in Oklahoma City, where I was born and raised. I also played college baseball in my home state, but long before college ball, and even longer before playing professional baseball, it started by playing T-ball and Little League.

My first team I ever played on was a T-ball team called the Blue Jays. We actually played in the very back of a YWCA complex near my house. I played other sports too as a kid. I played soccer but that didn't last too long. Then I played some flag football and, later, I played basketball. Throughout that entire time though I always continued playing baseball.

Growing up I was always playing in the outfield. That is where they put the players who weren't as good as the other kids — that was me back then — but I loved it. I would be out in the outfield practicing my pitching motion. During the games I remember dreaming of when we finally would get rid of playing at a level where they used pitching machines during the game.

In the batter's box I was a pretty bad hitter and that didn't really change much as I got older. But I developed into a good defender with the glove so they let me keep playing outfield. Then, finally, I found a knack for pitching and it stuck. As I got older, I played a little first base as well.

As a kid I was always an Indians fan. I played on a Little League team called the Indians and I think that was right when I was starting to get interested in watching Major League Baseball on television. Of course it didn't hurt that those Cleveland teams had Manny Ramirez, Jim Thome, Kenny Lofton and all of those great players.

I liked Jim Thome the best. He was probably my favorite player when I was a kid. When I later realized I would probably not be as big and strong as him, I started to gravitate over to watching pitchers, Randy Johnson in particular.

Playing baseball on the whole was a lot of fun back then. Baseball is pretty big in Oklahoma. All my friends played on the same team as me and a lot of players in our Little League went to the same high school as I did, Putnam City Original. We would usually play a league game during the week and a tournament on the weekend. We would travel a few times during the summer to Kansas or a different neighboring state to play. As I got older I started to travel a little further.

The support I had from my mom and dad to allow me to play as much as I did was amazing. I really can't thank them enough. They supported me in every way so that I could continue to play the game that I loved. I had so many great baseball memories growing up and am so thankful that I had a childhood filled with the joy of sports, particularly baseball.

Andrew Heaney continues the rehab process following Tommy John surgery this past July and is likely to miss the entire 2017 season. The Oklahoma State University product was limited to one game last season and he started 18 contests for the Angels in 2015.

THE BIG

The 2017 season marks the Halos' 52nd season at Angel Stadium, their home for 52 of their 57 seasons. After spending their first five years of existence playing at Wrigley Field and Chavez Ravine, the Angels landed in their new home in Orange County. Since opening the doors for its first exhibition game April 9, 1966, Angel Stadium has played host to some of the Club's memorable events including seven Western Division clinching games (1979, 1982, 1986, 2007, 2008, 2009 and 2014), three All-Star Games (1967, 1989 and 2010) and the 2002 World Series, including the Angels Game 7 victory over the San Francisco Giants to clinch the franchise's first championship. Angel Stadium has also seen several individual Halos leave their indelible marks on the game of baseball. Whether it be the four Angels no-hitters, Rod Carew's 3,000th hit, Reggie Jackson's 500th home run or Don Sutton's 300th win, Angel Stadium has housed some of Major League Baseball's most prestigious accomplishments.

Presently, Angel Stadium sits as baseball's fourth-oldest ballpark, trailing only Boston's Fenway Park, Chicago's Wrigley Field and Los Angeles' Dodger Stadium. Affectionately known as "The Big A", Angel Stadium has seen over 113 million fans pass through its gates since 1966, including a current stretch of 14 consecutive seasons of three million fans, a streak only the Angels and Yankees have achieved since 2003.

After an Aug. 31, 1964 groundbreaking ceremony, Anaheim Stadium, as it was originally known, was completed in 1966 at a cost of $24 million. The facility's centerpiece was a giant A-frame scoreboard standing 230 feet high and was the source of the stadium's nickname.

With a seating capacity of 43,250, Anaheim Stadium was built with "Convenience, Comfort and Courtesy" in mind. Narrow foul territory areas and quickly rising decks gave fans an up-close view of the action. Gradually-inclined ramps, escalators, wide aisles and helpful ushers as well as three surrounding free ways, 26 entrance lanes and 28 exit lanes added to the Big A's accessibility.

Anaheim Stadium underwent construction to enclose the stadium in 1979 for additional seating to accommodate the football Rams. Seating capacity was increased to 64,593 for baseball and more than 70,000 for football. A total of 108 executive style boxes were added to surround the rear of the Club Level. In addition to the Stadium Club, there were two other private dining areas designed for groups — the Stadium Pavilion and the Football Press Box.

At that time, the Big A board was preserved and moved to the edge of the parking lot adjacent to the Orange Freeway behind the right field area. When the Rams left for St. Louis, Anaheim Stadium's primary tenant remained the Angels, who originally signed a 35-year contract (through 2001). Renovations began Oct. 1, 1996, to revert the 30-year old structure back to a baseball only facility and the ballpark was renamed Edison International Field. The total cost for the stadium renovation was estimated at $100 million and the project was completed in time for the Angels Opening Day, April 1, 1998. New enhancements were added all around the ballpark but perhaps the most noticeable is the center field waterfalls and rock formation that come together to form an "A". Settled inside the waterfall's rapids are water geysers that originally shot water into the air whenever an Angels player hit a home run.

Other unique features of Angel Stadium include terraced bullpens in the outfield, widened concourses, new restroom and concession areas, family-oriented seating sections, state-of-the-art club-level and dugout-level suites, a youth-oriented interactive game area and landscaped courtyards (with statues in remembrance of Gene Autry and Michelle Carew).

In addition, Angel Stadium includes two full-service restaurants: The Knot Hole Club (a sports bar located at the club level down the right field line) and The Diamond Club (an upscale restaurant with outdoor seating on the field level behind home plate). In 2014, the newest luxury seating area was added to the ballpark with the opening of HALO, now known as the Kettle One Club.

During the 2016 offseason, Angel Stadium underwent additional upgrades, including new LED stadium lights. The following organizations were involved in implementing the transition of Anaheim Stadium into Angel Stadium: Walt Disney Imagineering, which served as the manager of the design and construction; HOK Sports Facilities Group and Robert A.M. Stern Architects, which were responsible for the architectural planning, design and renovation; and Turner Construction, which directed and provided construction services.

ANGELS: 1000

Cameron Maybin, Danny Espinosa, Martin Maldonado, Bud Norris and Ben Revere all made their Angels debut on Opening Night. But it was when Revere entered the game as a pinch-hitter in the ninth inning in which a little franchise history was made.

Revere, signed by the Angels as a free agent over the winter, became the 1,000th player all-time to appear in a game for the Angels in the regular season.

Eddie Yost might be considered the first player in Angels history. When the team made their debut in 1961 the club's first game was in Baltimore and Yost hit lead-off. It was Yost's 17th season in the big leagues.

Eli Grba was the club's very first selection in the 1960 MLB Expansion Draft. He won 11 games for the Angels that season, the first of three with the Angels before he retired.

WORLD SERIES WIN: FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

THE COACHING STAFF

Fifteen years ago the Angels won their first World Series title and Angel Magazine this season will look back at some of the defining moments from the historic 2002 season.

The 16th field manager in Angels history, Mike Scioscia at the time was in his third campaign as the club's skipper, and he and General Manager Bill Stoneman helped assemble a coaching staff that would help guide the Angels to the Fall Classic and, ultimately, a win over the San Francisco Giants in the seven-game series.

Griffin and Roenicke are still members of the Angels coaching staff, and Black (San Diego and Colorado), Maddon (Tampa Bay and the Chicago Cubs) and Roenicke (Milwaukee) have each managed at various times in their big league coaching careers.

ALUMNI SPOTLIGHT: VLADIMIR GUERRERO

Vladimir Guerrero will be honored north of the border later this summer. The Canadian Baseball Hall of Fame announced this year's inductees, which includes the former Angels slugger.

Before signing with the Angels as a free agent prior to the 2004 season, Guerrero broke in with the Montreal Expos, where he played his first eight big league seasons.

The ceremony will take place on June 24 in St. Marys, Ontario.

In January it was announced that Guerrero narrowly missed induction into the Hall of Fame in Cooperstown. In his first year of eligibility Guerrero received 71.1 percent support from BBWAA members. He was just 15 votes shy of reaching the necessary 75 percent threshold for election, making a well-deserved induction in 2018 a high probability.

NUMBERS GAME

Angels third baseman Yunel Escobar is the first player in Angels history to wear number 0 having started to wear 0 late last season. He is also one of only 17 players in big league history to wear the unique number.

Former Angels outfielder Brennan Boesch is the only player in Angels club history to wear number 00. In big league history, 20 men have worn 00.

THE WRIGHT STUFF

BY CLYDE WRIGHT

THROUGHOUT THE SEASON CLYDE WRIGHT SHARES SOME OF HIS FAVORITE MEMORIES IN ANGEL MAGAZINE

The role of a starting pitcher has changed over the years, but the one thing that hasn't changed is how important the staff is for any team that expects to win.

When I was with the Angels, I got to play with a lot of great ones. Guys like Nolan Ryan, Andy Messersmith, Tom Murphy and Rudy May were the top guys at that time (I also got to play with Bill Singer for one season). Nolan is the most famous of the guys, a true Hall of Famer, but out of that group Tom Murphy was the guy who was underrated in my opinion. Murph was a real smart pitcher. He also hit a lot of batters. He was just wild enough to make things interesting.

Thinking back to Nolan Ryan I would have never imaged back then that he would go on and play 27 big leagues seasons. He threw hard of course and back then there was no pitch count. He also wanted to finish every game he started. The manager gave him a long leash because he was throwing as hard late in the game as he was at the start of a game.

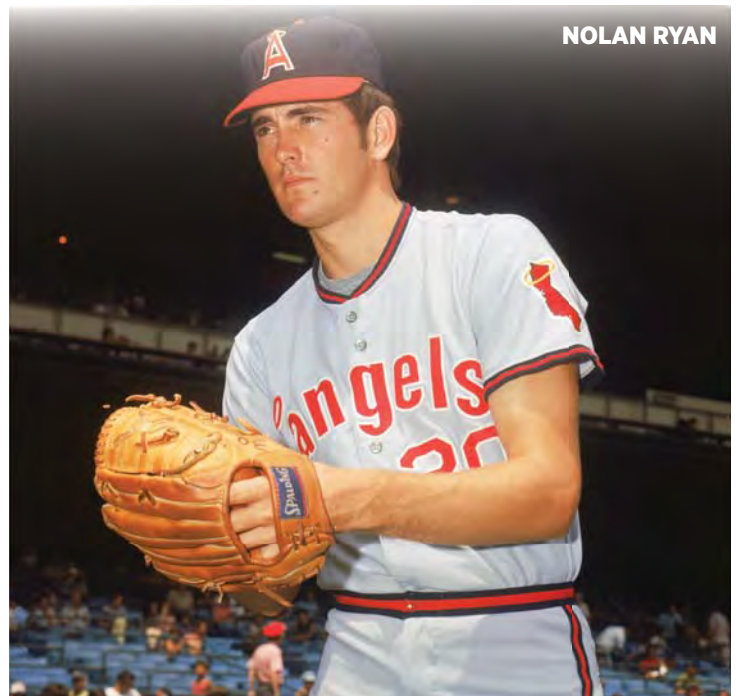

A lot of his famous longevity can be attributed to how hard he worked out. He lasted so long in his pitching career because of the work ethic he had off the field.

A lot of great starting pitchers for the Angels followed those guys. Frank Tanana and the way he pitched after getting hurt is one thing that really impressed me. After his arm injury he could not throw as hard but he developed a great curveball and became a complete pitcher. He loved to keep hitters of balance. It was a lot of fun for him.

Mike Witt pitched for the Angels in the 1980s and, like Tanana, when you talk about Witt you are talking about a great curveball. It was a super pitch for him. I remember the day he threw the perfect game at Texas. He was moving his fastball and mixing in his curveball so well. With how tall he was, he really used his downward plane well.

Then came Chuck Finley and Chuck reminded me a lot of Nolan. He was what I call a good ol' boy and he had a lot of determination. Chuck is 6-6 and he threw hard and mixed in his other pitches well. He just liked to play. He was the type of pitcher who never looked over his shoulder. He was about throwing nine innings as he often as he could.

For a lot of years Finley was joined by a couple of fellow lefties in Mark Langston and Jim Abbott. Langston had great stuff, great mechanics. He also had a heck-of-a pick-off move to first base. I look at him now and am convinced if you gave him a week or two to get his arm in shape he could go out there and pitch for you.

NOLAN RYAN

RUDY MAY

Jim Abbott might not have won 100 games with the Angels but in a lot of ways he is the face of Major League Baseball when you look at what he accomplished. You can't call what he had a handicap because he did everything that we did. It was just amazing at everything he could do. When he fielded his position, I could not believe the way he moved the glove from hand to arm. Sit back and think about it. You would think he has no chance to pitch in the big leagues, but not only did he do it but he was outstanding at what he did, even throwing a no-hitter.

More recently you look at guys like John Lackey and Jered Weaver. John Lackey had that bulldog-type of mentality. He was a hard-nosed guy who didn't care much about the batter and what the batter thought of him. He was on the mound for Game 7 as the World Series starter as a rookie, and I tell you that would have been a job I would have loved to have had. He did it as a rookie and I

CHUCK FINLEY

Clyde Wright won 100 games in the big leagues over a career which spanned 10 seasons, including eight with the Angels from 1966-73. The 1970 season was his best as he won 22 games, was named to the All-Star team and tossed a no-hitter, the first in Angel Stadium.

pitched in more than 300 games and never made the playoffs. The closest I got to the playoffs was the second day of spring training.

Then with Weaver most recently he went about the job the right way. When it was his turn to pitch, he was always well prepared. He was also intense and ready to pitch. Jered reminded me a lot of Messersmith. When it was Andy's day to pitch, don't go near him. It is a unique, tough mindset.

The game has changed over the years and the evolution of the bullpen has changed how a starter goes about his job. Look at a bullpen now and they got a specialist for everything you can image – someone to pitch to a lefty, someone to pitch to a guy hitting .210, someone to pitch to a skinny guy. When I pitched the bullpen guys did not get a lot of work because we knew they were worse than us. This was long before the closers and what you see today.

But it is great to look back at guys who performed the same job in different eras. I am thrilled that I got to play when I did, however. I got to have some drinks with Mickey Mantle, I pitched to Hank Aaron and I watched Willie Mays play. It sure was a fun time to be involved in the game of baseball.

POR AMAURY PI-GONZÁLEZ

Te convertiste en ciudadano de los Estados Unidos este año.

-“Si, fueron dos meses practicamente de estudios, fue algo de enseñanza para mi aprender de la historia de los Estados Unidos, vivía aqui pero no sabía muchas cosas y no tenía la historia principalmente en mi cabeza, fue una experiencia bastante agradable y ser Americano es algo que ha sido un sueño”.

¿Como iniciastes tú carrera en Cuba?

-“Desde pequeño, desde que tenía 8 años, mi abuelo(que en paz descanse) me inclinó mucho al béisbol, siempre estube en los equipos nacionales juveniles, jugué cuatro años con el equipo Industriales y de ahí en adelante decidí a los 19 años de venir a los Estados Unidos”

¿Tus jugadores favoritos en Cuba?

-“Lárazo Vargas, Juan Linares, eran los peloteros a seguir, Vargas de la capital y Linares el mejor tercera-base que a dado Cuba, aprendí muchos de ellos eran bateadores muy buenos de mucha fuerza y tenían resultados”

Cosas favoritas:

Ciudad: Miami.

Musica: Reggaeton.

Comida: Arroz, frijoles, carne.

Estilo de bestir: La última moda, Europea.

Número Cero: Significa empezar de nuevo.

Mejor consejo para un joven que aspira a ser pelotero.

-“Que sigan entrenandose, que sigan esforzandose que el béisbol es un juego en que hay que tener pasión y es lo más lindo que pueden jugar”.

El 6 de Octubre de 2004, Escobar se escapa de Cuba en un bote junto a un grupo de 30 cubanos, de los cuales se encontraban cinco jugadores más de béisbol. “Fueron momentos difíciles” y agregaba; “pensando en el sacrificio que estabamos haciendo, algunos tenían agua que tomar, pero eran los que tenían niños.”

En 2007, Escobar debutaba en las mayores con los Braves de Atlanta. Jugó con Toronto, Tampa Bay, Washington y desde el 2016 es tercera-base para los Angels.

¿Como evaluas tu primera temporada?

-“Primero, quiero saludar a todo el mundo, y considero que fue un buen año para mi, promedio de .300, pero lo que más me preocupa es embasarme para que el equipo anote más carreras, tener un buen promedio de embase para que tengamos más triunfos, y todavía estoy trabajando para batear más por la banda contraria.”

Danny Espinoza, fue compañero de equipo tuyo en Washington, ahora está aqui jugando segunda base contigo.

-“Con Danny en Washington, lo conozco muy bien, un buen muchacho defensivamente, también tiene mucha fuerza bateando...y creo que hemos incluido una pieza clave con Danny Espinosa, nos va ayudar mucho este año.

FIVE QUESTIONS

WITH YUNEL ESCOBAR

BY JOSE MOTA

Q: What was your reaction when the Angels picked up your 2017 option?

A: "I was very, very happy. I love playing in Southern California, love the fans and the stadium. Being from Cuba, I enjoy the warm weather in the summer and even in April the temperature is always nice. I had a good season last year but I really want to win and go to the playoffs with my teammates. We have a solid group here, a great owner, a bright manager and awesome coaches. All we need is health."

Q: Was there anything in particular you focused on more in preparation for this season?

A: "Everything but I especially worked hard on my footwork to allow my throws to be more accurate. I try to improve in every aspect, including being a better teammate and to represent my family and my country with pride by how I play the game."

Q: Why was it important to you to become a U.S. Citizen?

A: "It was important because this great country has given me an opportunity to play baseball for a living and has provided me with the many freedoms that come with being part of a community. My children were born here and it was the right time to do it for them and set a good example."

Q: Which was the hardest part of the process?

A: "Preparing for and then taking the test. I was extremely nervous for a few months. But thankfully I had a good tutor helping me even during the evenings while I was in Spring Training. I needed to learn and I actually enjoyed knowing more about the history, wars, battles, founding fathers, and even on how Thanksgiving got started (laughing)!"

Q: How relieved were you when it all became a reality?

A: "It was a huge weight off of my shoulders, and my family was very proud. I had been thinking about it for a few years and I finally found the right time and received the proper advice from knowledgeable people who encouraged me."

MAKING THE (INITIAL) CUT

At the start of the season the Angels selected the contracts of pitchers Bud Norris, Yusmeiro Petit and Blake Parker after a club-record 69 players participated in Spring Training with the Angels.

They were part of the club's Opening Day Roster along with club's 22 other players (listed below plus a few who started the season on the disabled list). They also beat the odds as they were three of 29 non-roster invitees to camp, also a franchise record.

Norris is a veteran of eight big leagues seasons (this is his ninth campaign) and once won 15 games in a season with the Orioles. Petit entered this season with nearly 200 games pitched at this level on his resume, and Parker — who this spring enjoyed a streak of 17 consecutive outs by way of the strikeout, which was longer than any regular season streak since at least 1974 — has now seen action with four different clubs since breaking in as a rookie in 2012.

How the roster changes over the course of a season is almost as interesting as the season itself. Last year 53 players participated in at least one game with the Angels. Two years ago 51 guys saw action, and in 2014 the number reached 54.

In mid-April, Deolis Guerra was added to the 40-man roster. He too was a non-roster invitee to camp.

ARTE AND CAROLE MORENO

In May of 2003, Carole and Arte Moreno were introduced as the third owners in Angels franchise history and their impact was immediate. The Moreno's have guided the franchise to six A.L. West Division titles and 14 consecutive seasons drawing over three million fans, resulting in a total home attendance over 43 million in their tenure.

The Moreno's focus is balanced between baseball, business operations and fan experience. In 2009, the Halos were voted the top franchise in professional sports in "Fan Value and Experience" by voters in a fan poll by ESPN the Magazine. In the poll, the Angels ranked in the top three among Major League teams for 10 consecutive seasons (2003-2012).

Carole and Arte's support of the Angels Operations Department has culminated in key free agent signings of players such as three-time N.L. MVP Albert Pujols, nine-time Gold Glove outfielder Torii Hunter, 2009 World Series MVP Hideki Matsui, 2005 A.L. Cy Young Award winner Bartolo Colon, 2004 A.L. MVP Vladimir Guerrero, and several others. In 2014, the Moreno's signed two-time A.L. MVP Mike Trout to a six-year contract extension. Since purchasing the Club on May 22, 2003, the Angels have sported a 1212-1012 record (.545 winning pct.).

During the family's tenure, the organization has continued to cultivate players from its farm system. Their dedication has paid dividends in the development of significant players such as Trout, Gold Glove outfielder Kole Calhoun, Garrett Richards, C.J. Cron, Matt Shoemaker and Cam Bedrosian among several others.

Over the past 14 years, Carole and Arte have strengthened the Club's commitment to local communities and beyond. In January of 2004, the Moreno's established the Angels Baseball Foundation concentrating on investments in education, health care, arts & sciences and community-related youth programs to experience the positive attributes of baseball. The Angels Foundation distributes annual grants to various programs within Southern California. In 2010, the Angels were privileged to host their third All-Star Game (also 1967 & 1989). In conjunction with MLB's All-Star Legacy Fund, the foundation funded renovation of softball fields at Anaheim's Pioneer Park (into the MLB Angels All-Star Complex) as well as the special-surfaced field for the Miracle League of Orange County for disabled youth. The foundation regularly donates tickets, memorabilia and ballpark experiences to the various groups and fundraisers.

In addition to their responsibilities with the Angels and various committees within MLB, the Moreno's were part of ownership of the former Single-A Salt Lake Trappers of the Pioneer League. Under their leadership, the Trappers won three championships. Carole and Arte were also original investors in the Arizona Diamondbacks (including their 2001 World Series championship) and in a partnered ownership of the NBA's Phoenix Suns.

The Moreno family is also active in their own philanthropic efforts. In 1997, Carole and Arte established the Moreno Family Foundation to support nonprofit organizations focusing on youth and education as well as investing in educational scholarships in K-8, high school and college. Their favorite charities include St. Vincent de Paul, St. Mary's Food, Bank the Barrow Neurological Institute, Boys & Girls Clubs, United Methodist Outreach Ministries (UMOM) family homeless shelters, American Heart Association and Fresh Start Women's Foundation. The Morenos were previously members of the Little League Foundation's Board of Trustees, which assists Little Leagues in every state and more than 70 other countries.

Carole was born in Reno, NV, and moved often as the daughter of a career Air Force man. She spent much of her youth in Fredonia, KS, and went on to earn a degree in journalism from the University of Kansas. Arte is native of Tucson, AZ, and served his country in Vietnam as a member of the U.S. Army. After his tour of duty, he attended the University of Arizona, graduating with a degree in marketing. In 2005, Time Magazine selected Moreno as one of the 25 Most Influential Hispanics in America.

Carole and Arte Moreno are parents of three children.

FRONT OFFICE EXECUTIVES

BILLY EPPLER, GENERAL MANAGER

Billy Eppler was named the 12th General Manager in Angels history on October 4, 2015, agreeing to a four-year contract thru the 2019 campaign.

Eppler oversees all aspects of the Club's baseball operations and reports to Owner Arte Moreno.

"Billy's experience in the areas of scouting, player development and major league operations, in addition to his organizational and communication skills, were primary reasons for our decision. He is energetic, creative and has a tremendous passion for the game," said Moreno.

Within his first month on the job, Eppler orchestrated a deal with Atlanta to secure the game's top defender in shortstop Andrelton Simmons. During the 2015 Winter Meetings, he filled the need for a third baseman via trade with Washington for INF Yunel Escobar. From 2004 thru 2015, Eppler worked his way up the New York Yankees baseball operations department. He was initially hired as Assistant Director of Baseball Operations, Nov. 1, 2004. He finished his fourth season as Assistant General Manager and first as Vice-President in '15. His responsibilities for the Yankees and assisting General Manager Brian Cashman included player acquisitions, roster composition and management, staffing and personnel decisions, and player contract negotiations. In addition, he oversaw all phases and personnel in the Yankees' Major League and professional scouting departments both domestically and internationally.

NICK TROPEANO

Scott – the Angel Magazine Junior Reporter – sat down with Nick Tropeano and asked a variety of questions.

JUNIOR REPORTER: Are you a big tech-guy when it comes to computers?

NICK TROPEANO: Not too much though actually I got my first video game console, PlayStation 4, during spring training. I play Overwatch which is sort of like Halo, and I play the Rory McIlroy PGA Tour game.

JUNIOR REPORTER: Do you collect baseball cards?

NICK TROPEANO: As a kid in New York I was a Yankees fan. I have a lot of Derek Jeter and Mariano Rivera memorabilia. I have full books, full binders of baseball cards.

JUNIOR REPORTER: Would you ever be The Bachelor on TV if they asked you to?

NICK TROPEANO: Oh, wow. My mom watches that show. I am not into it that much but if they asked me, sure, I would do it.

JUNIOR REPORTER: Out of all the movies you have seen, if you could go back and be in one of them which one would it be?

NICK TROPEANO: This might be before your time but the movie Rocky. It was an inspirational boxing movie.

JUNIOR REPORTER: If you had to dye your hair a certain color, what color would you choose?

NICK TROPEANO: Blond. I have never had blond hair before. I might give that a shot.

JUNIOR REPORTER: Do you enjoy gardening?

NICK TROPEANO: Sometimes. My mom will plant some tomato plants and I am the helper. I am not doing the hard part though because I am not too good with that type of stuff. But I can help a little.

JUNIOR REPORTER: How many times have you ripped your pants on the field during a game?

NICK TROPEANO: I don't think I have ever actually ripped my pants during a game. I have ripped my belt before.

JUNIOR REPORTER: As a player do you visit the team store to buy gifts?

NICK TROPEANO: During the season I have a lot of family who comes to visit. They love to get Angels gear and I will head up there and make sure I get the gear for them.

NICK TROPEANO: I try not to but I have a sweet tooth. I like Starburst, I like chocolate. Yeah, sometimes during the game if I am not playing I will sneak in some candy.

JUNIOR REPORTER: What frustrates you the most during a game?

NICK TROPEANO: Most baseball players would say the umpires. But it is part of the game. You just have to compete out there.

JUNIOR REPORTER: When you go to the movie theatre what size of popcorn do you get?

NICK TROPEANO: I am going the with the jumbo size for sure. If I am with someone I will share. I am also going with the jumbo size soda at the movies.

JUNIOR REPORTER: Have you ever had a bucket of [BODYARMOR] dumped on you?

NICK TROPEANO: I have but not in pro ball yet. In college I threw a no-hitter and got a big [BODYARMOR] bath there and then. That was fun.

THE KID IN ME

BY SYDNEE-ANNE

A special event happened at Angel Stadium recently involving my friend and I wanted to share it here as part of a Kid in Me story for Angel Magazine.

Albert Pujols and his family have the Pujols Family Foundation charity organization. Their mission is to promote awareness, provide hope and meet tangible needs for children and families who live with Down syndrome. Last year I volunteered at their golf tournament.

The Foundation invited our friend, Chris Sutter, to attend an Angels game and meet Albert before the game. Chris is the son of former LA Kings head coach, Darryl Sutter, and is popular at Kings games. Chris has been featured on the dance cam at STAPLES Center during those games. In addition, Chris has Down syndrome and so does Albert's daughter.

We got to the Big A early to watch batting practice on the field. That is when we met Albert, but part of what made the evening fun was that this was all a surprise to Chris. We had just told him that we were going to the game but we wanted to get there early for batting practice. In a lobby, between the clubhouses, we waited as Tim Mead of the Angels was helping coordinate with Albert on behalf of the team and the Foundation.

Even before Albert saw us, Chris got to meet Mike Trout and Rod Carew. He took photos and Fox Sports West was there to film it and they aired the story that night. Then Albert came out and he came with gifts for Chris. He was very nice to spend time with Chris as he gave him a signed bat and gave him some batting tips.

The Angels Team Store also provided Chris with his very own special Angels jersey with his last name on it, and even though that was all a surprise for Chris, the Kings had a special 50th Anniversary Jersey for Albert and they both put on their new jerseys for that event.

We then went onto the field by way of the Angels dugout. Alex Curry interviewed Chris on the field where he met other Angels such as Mike Scioscia and Cliff Pennington. Mark Gubicza of Angels TV is a big hockey fan and we went to the outside TV set and watched them broadcast their pregame show with Patrick O'Neal who knows Chris well. Our last stop was upstairs in the Angels TV booth where we all held the microphones and took pictures.

The Down syndrome community really takes care of each other. While I know Chris has Down syndrome, when I read about it I learned that Down syndrome occurs when an individual has a full or partial extra copy of chromosome 21. This additional genetic material alters the course of development and causes the characteristics associated with Down syndrome. Once I got to know Chris I just see him as a friend and not a friend with Down syndrome.

We watched the game from our seats. The Angels won 7-1 and it was a great night. I was so grateful to do this with Chris and my friend Sara — she is a big Angels fan too — along with my dad. We enjoyed the game. Thanks to everyone involved for making it a special night and thank you for reading my story!
