

Stokes Peebles, MD FAAAAI

Speaker Biography

Dr. Peebles is the Elizabeth and John Murray Professor of Medicine in the Division of Allergy, Pulmonary, and Critical Care Medicine; Chief of the Section of Allergy/Immunology; and the Associate Director of the Allergy/Immunology Fellowship Training Program at Vanderbilt University School of Medicine. Dr. Peebles graduated from Davidson College and Vanderbilt University School of Medical School. He was a resident in Internal Medicine at Vanderbilt and completed fellowships in Allergy/Immunology at Johns Hopkins (1991-1995) and Pulmonary/Critical Care at Vanderbilt (1995-1998). Dr. Peebles is also a board-certified specialist in Internal Medicine, Allergy/Immunology, Pulmonary Medicine, and Critical Care Medicine. His research interests include airway and lung inflammation with a particular focus on viral- and allergen-induced airway disease.