Johnnies' slate includes bigger tests in '24-25

By ZACH BRAZILLER

The college basketball season is now roughly seven weeks away. Soon, Rick Pitino will begin his second year at St. John's after a strong offseason in the transfer portal. On Thursday, the Big East released its entire schedule, and The Post breaks down the Johnnies' complete slate below:

Frantic February

In the span of just over three weeks, from Feb. 1-23, St. John's will face two-time reigning national champion Connecticut twice (on the road Feb. 7, at the Garden on Feb. 23), host projected tournament teams Marquette, Creighton and Providence, and visit Villanova. The only soft game in that challenging period is a visit to DePaul on Feb. 19, in between games against Creighton and UConn.

Non-conference schedule

Pitino's first season featured a solid non-conference schedule. It is improved this year. The Johnnies will face potential top-10 preseason team Baylor, which is led by star transfers Jeremy Roach (Duke) and Norchad Omier (Miami) along with projected one-and-done lottery pick VJ Edgecombe of Long Island Lutheran, followed by either Tennessee or Virginia in the Baha Mar Hoops Bahamas Championship. During the trip to the Bahamas, in which St. John's faces Baylor on Nov. 21 to open play, it will also meet potential tournament team Georgia on Nov. 24. The Red Storm's first test comes Nov. 17 when New Mexico, coached by Pitino's son Richard, visits the Garden. Kansas State comes to town a few weeks later, on Dec. 7.

Soft start

St. John's is in position to start the league season well again, as it did last year in winning four of its first five games. Four of its first seven Big East contests are at home, starting against conference punching bag DePaul on Dec. 17. Though that is followed by trips to Providence and Creighton on New Year's Eve, the Johnnies get Butler, Villanova and Georgetown all at home after that.

Kadary back in Newark

The atmosphere at the Prudential Center on Jan. 18 should be electric when Kadary Richmond faces Seton Hall, his old team. Pirates fans are certainly expected to shower him with boos after switching to their rival. Richmond spent three years at Seton Hall, helping the Big East school win the NIT a year ago and finish a surprising fourth in the league. After last season, the standout point guard from Brooklyn entered the transfer portal and joined Pitino at St. John's.

Garden yes; UBS no

St. John's will equal last year's total of eight games at MSG, with New Mexico and seven league games being played there. One change is that the Johnnies will not be playing two conference games at UBS Arena, as it did last year.

Golf
