

United States

Women, Business and the Law 2024 (WBL2024) presents an index covering 190 economies and structured around the life cycle of a working woman. In total, 35 questions are scored across eight indicators. Overall scores are then calculated by taking the average of each indicator, with 100 representing the highest possible score. Data refer to the laws and regulations that are applicable to the main business city (New York City). Different rules may apply in other jurisdictions so local legislation should be reviewed. Based on this approach, United States scores 91.3 out of 100.0. The overall score for United States is lower than the regional average observed across OECD high-income economies (95.4). Within the OECD high-income region, there are 14 economies that score 100 out of 100.

United States - Scores for Women, Business and the Law 2024

Relative Strengths

When it comes to constraints on freedom of movement, laws affecting women's decisions to work, constraints related to marriage, constraints on women starting and running a business, and gender differences in property and inheritance, United States gets a perfect score.

Areas for Improvement

When it comes to laws affecting women's pay, laws affecting women's work after having children, and laws affecting the size of a woman's pension, United States could consider reforms to improve legal equality for women.

For example, one of the lowest scores for United States is on the indicator measuring laws affecting women's pay (the WBL2024 Pay indicator). To improve on the Pay indicator, United States may wish to consider mandating equal remuneration for work of equal value.
