

Federation of Congolese Abroad (FCE)

(Add organization's Website here)

Bizo Biaba Aoci, Chairman, biabaaoci@gmail.com

Chapeau

FCE is a civil society organization whose aim is to promote equity, equality and justice in all action undertaken under any vital livelihood areas for the good of every being on the planet. We are cognizant of the effects of climate change on all the sectors of life on the planet earth. We are convinced that the success or failure of any plan for the future made by the UN, institutions, governments, actors and stakeholders mainly depends on the effort put in, commitment towards, actual action taken on and the level of achievements on climate change.

Chapter I. Sustainable development and financing for development

The global aid system as it is to date has yielded no results at all for underdeveloped countries; and this for decades. We believe that each nation has enough resources within to finance their development and sustain the wellbeing of their population. Each country should independently come up with an appropriate development plan inspired by and addressing the needs and expectations of the population. The plan should never serve any political interest and should be at least 90% locally financed, if not totally.

Chapter II. International peace and security

Despite the existence of the UN Security Council and the many UN peace keeping missions deployed over centuries, the world has become more and more unstable and insecure. For international peace and security to become a reality we recommend a more inclusive approach to be adopted. The first step towards this inclusion is to make at least one African nation to be a permanent member of the UN Security Council.

Chapter III. Science, technology and innovation and digital cooperation

Technological innovation is good, but it should be allowed and accepted within the limits of not causing more harm to the already ruined nature and environment.

Chapter IV. Youth and future generations

The youth should be prepared to take up the mantle in the future and for the future generation. Therefore, the youth should be educated in the matter that matters most, which is how to take care of the environment in all they do. Each country should seriously initiate and implement an education program for the youth on Environmental Sustainability and Climate Change Action. This is the only way to secure the future generation.

Chapter V. Transforming global governance

Democracy has caused more trouble than stability and prosperity all over the world, especially in Africa. Most of the globally accepted governance systems have not helped promote transparency and eliminate corruption. While intended to promote peace and freedom, these systems have given an opportunity to the unprepared and corrupt individuals to take advantage of the same systems to cause trouble and instability by, for instance, conducting destructive demonstrations, starting rebellions and wars, promoting and living immoral and corrupt lives, etc. We suggest that every nation should be free to define an appropriate governance relevant to their own reality and holistic development. No governance system should be imposed to any nation, as a condition to receive any kind of help or assistance.