

FUNVIMUFROIN

(Fundación Víctimas Vulnerable, Mujeres Afro Independientes, FUNVIMUFROIN)

(@funvimufroincalivalle <https://funvimufroincalivalle.negocio.site>)

(Paola Andrea Quiñonez Caicedo, President, Email: paulatina.pgo@gmail.com Colombia- Cali)

Chapeau

(Civil Society organization that contributes to social, environmental and cultural well-being seeking to eradicate extreme poverty, racism with self-care Cordial greetings and ancestry to all those who present how Civil Society we send our appreciations, recommendations extending the voice with peace, respect, for the change and transformation of humanity Afro organization that protects the territory.)

Chapter I. Sustainable development and financing for development

(Promoting social causes is a great challenge measures to mobilize and carry out international dialogues, so that the realities of the 2030 Agenda and Development can be brought to reality, the necessary resources are needed, they could be channeled through a combination of measures to support Development that allow us to carry out collective actions with NGOs, Government Entities, Private Enterprises, Community, as an organization allow us great strides.)

Chapter II. International peace and security

(Access to information, international participation, security, the defense of life, human rights and the protection of leaders is the fundamental work we do in the NGO, protecting people who defend the environment and human rights and preventing conflicts allow for a stable and lasting peace, we recommend working with the Escazú agreement.)

Chapter III. Science, technology and innovation and digital cooperation

(the importance of ICTs, digital security is important, it encompasses the protection of sensitive data, which is the first start to achieve innovation and digital cooperation and technological sovereignty to close the digital divide, with greater awareness of the interdependencies of countries, and of the growing inequality, which the 4IR Fourth Industrial Revolution provides, this is not equitable in the world, generates a digital divide that is more difficult to close, it is necessary to reach the most impoverished places, gender, women, children, youth, older adults with inclusive education and technology.

Chapter IV. Young people and future generations

(The new generations need to be listened to, it is important to provide them with opportunities, through dialogue, listening, support human growth, conflict resolution capacity, development of their cooperation skills, negotiation, decision-making, empowering them, appreciating the knowledge of the elderly, their ancestry, history, care for the environment, peace.)

Chapter V. Transforming Global Governance

(Ensure the realization of human rights through an action free from abuse and corruption with respect for the rule of law, we need smart governance in the face of the global economic crisis, from states to provide security to climate management and return the crisis as an opportunity to advance favorable and careful change to mitigate the impact of the crisis provide the arc for more structured cooperation or even for full coordination supported by civil society and communities.)